

Packing Your Hurricane Emergency Kit

Every year, hurricanes wreak havoc on millions of people in the United States. The devastating winds and torrential rainfall of these severe storms may threaten your home, property, and physical well-being. With that in mind, you and your family must be prepared to endure the aftermath of a hurricane by preparing an emergency supply kit.

When packing your supplies, make sure to include the following:

A 3-day supply of nonperishable food

At least 1 gallon of water for each person and pet per day

Flashlight(s)

Battery-powered or hand-crank radio

Fully charged cellphone with charger and/or additional power sources

First-aid kit

Hygiene items (e.g., toilet paper, toothbrush, toothpaste and hand sanitizer)

7-days' worth of any essential medications

Family and emergency contact information

Copies of important documents (e.g., medical information, birth certificates, insurance)
